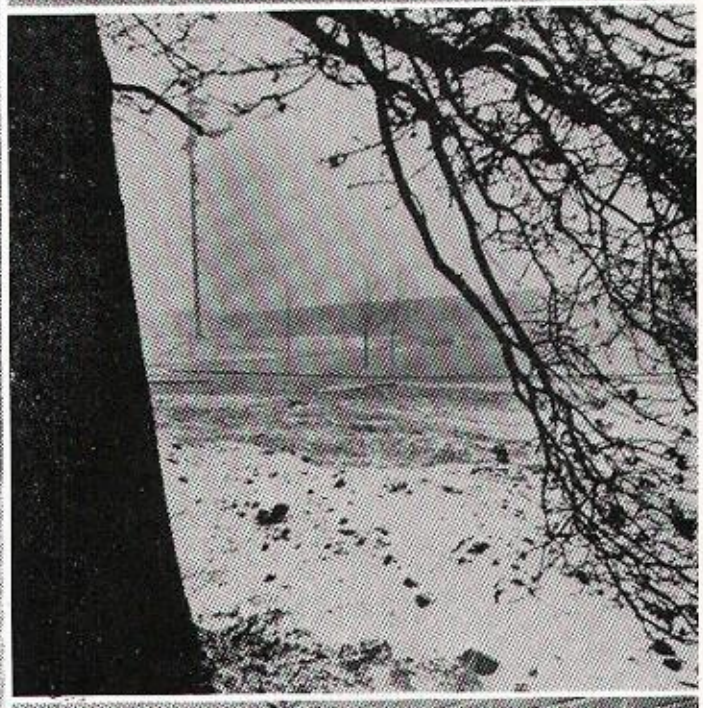
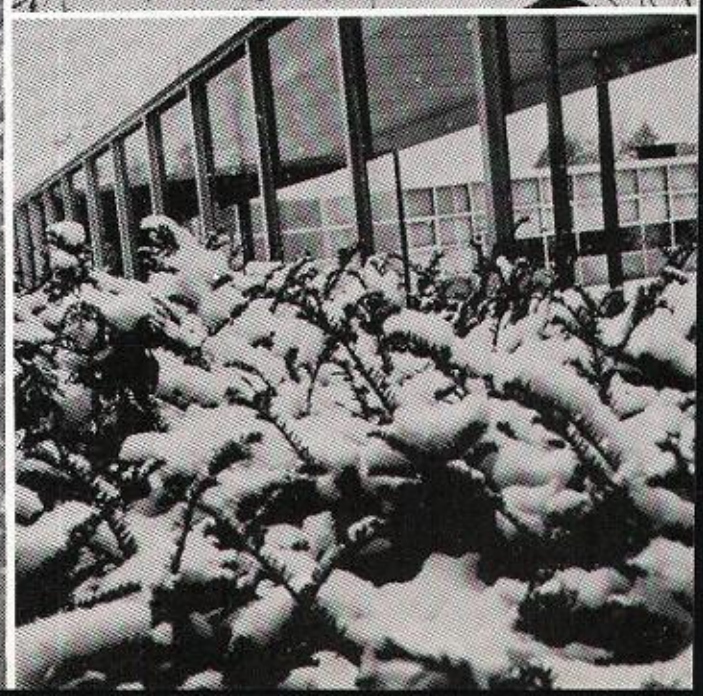
RAIN

In Memoriam Mrs. Lil Smith

Sue Avery





Spring hung back like a senior, clinging to old, safe winter but waiting on tip-toe to jump into the new sunlight. It couldn't wait forever. Before summer could sneak in it took the plunge into brightness. . .

Sue

I rise and shine to the warming specks of golden-grained sunshine . . .
Linda Hicks

Hums of excitement, awe, and marvel, encourage the day . . .
Sue Trullinger

The sun lingers a little longer to watch our new found hope . . .
Sue Avery

I whistle hello to the dew and it obligingly winks good morning . . .
L. H.

I think laughter is God's hand upon a troubled world . . .
L. H.

The sun went down lopsided and wild like a middle-aged rose . . .

Fall Activities

On Tuesday, September 4, 1962, school started for those old enough to go but didn't especially want to. Returning seniors and juniors felt stared at, pushed by, utterly amazed by, a huge throng of noisy, shuffling, talkative small monsters — Sophomores. Lost . . . I'm lost, moaned the wise fools. Legs kept double time to keep up with transient classes . . . 400 was 700 . . . 300 nonexistent. From the ground flew the new wing to relieve bursting classrooms and sluggish halls. Fall fell again.

The trees, dressed in muted flames, paled before the howling wind. It blew roofs upon the air. Blaring away, the monster left the earth scarred. After clearing up the windblown wrecks, the football team returned to the cry of aching muscles and bruised bones. The quarter ended . . . grades exploded . . . seniors sobbed.

Fall found football, fog, fun, frost, finals, and Friday.

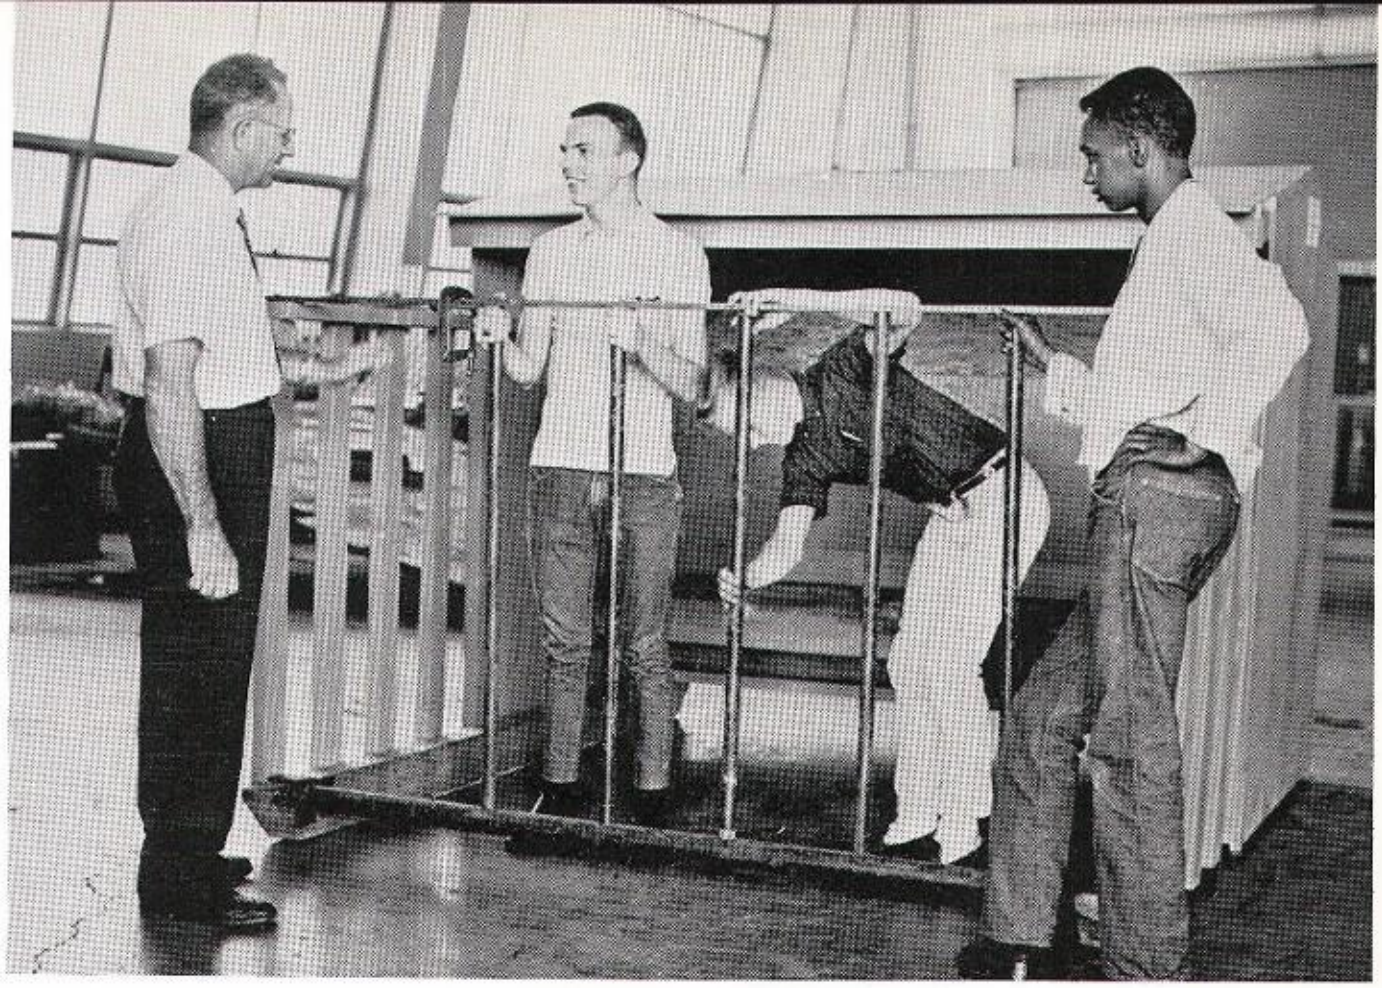
FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

This is a national organization of boys enrolled in vocational agriculture, commonly known as the F.F.A. An agriculturist may be a man or woman working in any field related to agriculture. Now emphasis has shifted from strictly farming training to careers in processing, manufacturing, teaching, extension work, government service and agricultural business management, marketing and sales. Many fields are increasing demands for those trained in agriculture.



Many group projects are done in the shop.

WINTER

"On to state! ! ! On to state! ! !," screamed basketball fans. The "polite, confident, unsophisticated" Eagles swooped down on Seattle, which looked like home this third time around. To the roar of the crowd they sailed in the green-tinged air of Hec-Edmonson Pavilion. Disappointed but not defeated, they flew south again.

Cold covered Winter's trees, sheathed in ice and hung in a curtain of rain. Wind whined . . . whistling breezeways. When a door opened, the wounded warmth, whipped by winter, wound slowly back into the room.

Winter wrapped Christmas, frozen noses, semester finals, college decisions, applications, blushing cheeks, basketball games, New Years, last minute shopping, national tests, caroling, deadlines . . . frenzy.

Punctured by occasional sunshine the season slid toward spring.

This was a drip-dry spring. Blue sky sneaked in occasionally but never for long. Under the constant rain-beating, flowers struggled toward the expected sunlight. Finally it came. With it traveled senior-itis and all the laziness of spring. Sparked by debates, dances, and decisions, school skidded to finals.

It was an ending and a beginning . . .

1963 HALL OF FAME

"I won't grow up"
"I don't wanna go to school
This was the song of the lost children, but for a group of seniors this was a day they wouldn't have missed for all of Captain Hook's treasure.

The Hall of Fame for the Class of 1963 screamed, stared, smiled, and shouted with joy as their names were called. There was that fairy-tale quality about the rest of the day and some were flying almost as well as if Tinkerbell has sprinked a little of her magic dust.

But it would soon be over. All stories come to an end.
Like Wendy, the senior class and its Hall of Fame were about to grow up and meet the world...
six days until graduation.
